

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus are described for improving branch prediction. The method includes determining a target of a branch instruction and storing the target of the branch instruction before the branch instruction is fully executed. The method further includes re-encountering the branch instruction and predicting a target for the branch instruction by accessing the stored target for the branch instruction.

RECEIVED

APR 22 2004

Technology Center 2100